Met, Loved, Wed and Parted.

Albert Tolbert is one of the best known young men about town. He was employed in the Southern Railway office and also in the Fidelity bank. To his friends he was known as a confirmed bachelor. Great was their surprise when he returned to the city two weeks ago with a pretty lady whom he introduced as his wife. She was a resident of the neighborhood of Georgetown. Her father is a rich Blue Grass stockman.

The happy couple after their marriage visited Florida and contemplated a trip to California, when all of a sudden they agreed to disagree.

Mr. Tolbert magnanimously says that he cannot make her happy. Mrs. Tolbert, so far as appearances are concerned, seems to be willing to proceed in the old lines, but Albert called a halt. They consulted counsel.

Tolbert gave his bride $1,000 in jewelry and $2,500 in United States bonds, and, as a measure of good luck, he left attached thereto the coupons which are due next January. Then they kissed, embraced, took one more look into each other's eyes and parted. She returned to Georgetown. He is in this city.—Cincinnati Cor. Philadelphia Record.

Killed a Deer with a Pocketknife.

One morning about three weeks ago George Phaup, of Chesterfield, Va., heard two hounds running a deer, but as this was no unusual occurrence in his neighborhood he paid no attention to it. Later in the day, while about to cross the Appomattox river bridge below his house, he was surprised to recognize the voices of the same two hounds he had heard in the morning, and this time they were baying something in a slash on the low grounds, which, on investigation, proved to be an enormous buck that had got hung in such a manner that despite his frantic efforts he could not release himself.

Mr. Phaup had no weapon other than a pocketknife, but he attacked the animal with that, and succeeded after a desperate struggle with the thoroughly enraged buck in cutting his throat. The final and most difficult task was getting his prize on the horse, but he soon accomplished this, and your humble servant had a piece of the venison for breakfast the next morning.—Cor. American Field.

Saturn's Rings Disappear.

According to Professor George C. Comstock, of the Washburn observatory, Madison, Wis., the phenomenon of the disappearance of the rings of Saturn has just occurred. Once in fifteen years the earth in its motion about the sun passes through the plane of the rings of Saturn, so that they are turned edgewise toward the earth. The rings are so thin that they then disappear altogether from sight in an ordinary telescope, while in the more powerful ones the planet appears to have a fine needle thrust through it. The appearance of the rings at the times of disappearance and reappearance is of special interest to astronomers, since it furnishes information with regard to the nature of these appendages not otherwise attainable.—Philadelphia Ledger.

School Savings Banks in England.

There has been a large increase of the number of scholars in the schools of England since Sept. 1, when the free education act went into force. The managers of schools advised the parents of the scholars to put into savings banks for the benefit of their children the three pence per week that had previously been paid for the education of each child, and school savings banks were established to receive these deposits. This advice was followed by large numbers of parents in various parts of England, and the banks have already been of service. In the city of Manchester, for example, more than 5,000 new accounts have been opened in them the first month. The small funds thus deposited will be useful to the children hereafter.—London Letter.

Cheap Chest Protectors.

At this season of the year so many people are caught unawares at a distance from their hearth and home and warm clothes that it is a good time to mention the great value of newspapers as chest protectors. Let the papers be firmly dried and then folded into several thicknesses and placed across the chest. If they are also wrapped in strips around the arms it will be found that they exert a beneficial influence.

Professional economists who utilize everything, even to old tin cans and shoe tops, are quite unstinted in their praises of old newspapers, and use them for linings for quilts, stuffing for beds, pillows, dress linings and sole protectors.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Thunderbolt and the Barbed Wire.

A wicked Connecticut thunderbolt got hold of a Tartar at the Cheney farm at North Haven a few days ago when it tackled a barbed wire fence that encircles a big lot belonging to Mr. Cheney. The bolt hit the fence near the house, split itself in two, and the divided bolt went entirely around the field in opposite directions at the same time. The wires jingled like a cotton spindle, but held their own pretty well, though the bolt yanked out of the ground eleven posts that carried the wires.—New York Sun

A stout Indian woman whose weight is over 300 pounds, fell through a wooden sidewalk in Bath, Me. The injury to the walk so annoyed the street commissioner that he told the woman that hereafter she must walk in the middle of the street.

Rats Made Good Eating.

It is reported that a negro employed in one of the warehouses at Americus has been in the habit of supplying dressed squirrels to the good people of Americus. Nothing was known about him and it was supposed that he was a huntsman, but some one grew suspicious, and investigations followed. It was discovered that the fellow had been killing the great rats that infest the warehouse, dressing and selling them as squirrels. Indignation does not express the feelings of the negro's customers when they learned of the fraud that had been perpetrated upon them.—Savannah News.

An Enormous Toad Stool.

A huge toadstool has appeared every fall for the last ten years on a low branch of an elm tree, near Woldeck park, Berlin. It stands about twenty-five inches high and has a cap almost two feet in diameter. Two years ago a policeman picked it, cooked it, and ate, and suffered no bad results from the meal. On Sept. 3 the big toadstool sprouted for the eleventh time.—Paris Letter.

F. O.—There are no longer restrictions upon American pork.—Pittsburg Bulletin.

A Letter That Came at Last.

Dory Coal, a farmer of Saunders county, came to the city Wednesday after his mail, and one of the letters handed him was from his former sweetheart, Miss Harris, written at Port Bryan, Ills., May 8, 1875 It was sixteen years, four months and thirteen days reaching its destination.—Nebraska State Journal.

"German Syrup"

A Cough and Croup Medicine.

For children a medicine should be absolutely reliable. A mother must be able to pin her faith to it as to her Bible. It must contain nothing violent, uncertain, or dangerous. It must be standard in material and manufacture. It must be plain and simple to administer; easy and pleasant to take. The child must like it. It must be prompt in action, giving immediate relief, as childrens' troubles come quick, grow fast, and end fatally or otherwise in a very short time. It must not only relieve quick but bring them around quick, as children chafe and fret and spoil their constitutions under long confinement. It must do its work in moderate doses. A large quantity of medicine in a child is not desirable. It must not interfere with the child's spirits, appetite or general health. These things suit old as well as young folks, and make Boschee's German Syrup the favorite family medicine. ③

DAILY NEVADA STATE JOURNAL

SATURDAY.....OCTOBER 31, 1891

NEVADA'S NATAL DAY.

In 1859, shortly after the discovery of the Comstock, but before the great wealth of the lead was even suspected, the residents of Western Utah, including Honey Lake Valley, which was believed to be a part of Utah Territory, met in convention at Genoa, which was originally a Mormon settlement, and formally seceded from Utah and organized a provisional government. Isaac Roop, of Honey Lake Valley, was elected Governor, and Judge Cradelbaugh, one of the Territorial Judges appointed by President Buchanan, was chosen Delegate to Congress to present the cause of the seceders and explain the necessity for the organization of the new Territory, which the convention named Nevada. March 2d, 1861, Congress organized the Territory, and James W. Nye, of New York, was appointed its first Governor. In 1863, the mines having attracted thousands from California to the Territory, it was resolved to draft a constitution and submit it to the people, with a view, in the event of its adoption, of seeking admission to the Union as a sovereign State. This constitution, which contained a clause taxing mines, was defeated by a large majority. In 1864, by authority of an Enabling Act of Congress, approved March 21st of that year, delegates elected by the people in the several counties, met in convention at Carson City and framed the present Constitution. It was ratified by a majority of the electors in September, 1864, and on the 31st day of October, of that year, just twenty-seven years ago, Nevada was formally admitted into the Union by proclamation of President Lincoln. Governor Nye, who was then at Unionville, in Humboldt county, with which telegraph communication had been established, the wires having been laid a part of the way on the sagebrush, received a dispatch direct from Washington informing him of the action of the President.

At the first State election, which was held in November, 1864, H. G. Blasdell was elected Governor and Harry G Worthington Member of Congress. The Legislature, which met in December, 1864, elected William M. Stewart and James W Nye United States Senators, for four and two years respectively. Senator Nye was re-elected in 1867, for a full term, and was succeeded in 1873, by John P. Jones, who was chosen last January for the fourth time. Senator Stewart was elected in 1869 to succeed himself, and in 1875, having served ten years, was succeeded by Wm. Sharon, whose term expired in 1881. In January, 1881, the Legislature elected James G. Fair to succeed Senator Sharon, and in January, 1887, William M. Stewart was elected to succeed Senator Fair.

In 1866 Delos R. Ashley was elected Representative to Congress to succeed Worthington; in 1868 Thomas Fitch was elected Ashley's successor; in 1870 Charles W. Kendall succeeded Fitch and was re-elected in 1872. In 1874 William Woodburn succeeded Kendall and was re-elected in 1876. In 1878 R. W. Daggett was elected and was succeeded by G. W. Cassidy, who was re-elected in 1882. In 1884 William Woodburn was again elected and was again chosen in 1886. In 1888 H. F. Bartine succeeded Woodburn, and was re-elected in 1890.

H. G. Blasdell was re-elected Governor in 1866 and was succeeded by L. R. Bradley who was elected in 1870 and re-elected in 1874. In 1878 J. H. Kinkead was elected to succeed Governor Bradley, and in 1882 J. W. Adams was elected to succeed Governor Kinkead. In 1886 C. C. Stevenson was elected to succeed Governor Adams. Governor Stevenson died before the expiration of his term of office and was succeeded by Lieutenant Governor Frank Bell. In 1890 R. K. Colcord, the present Governor, was elected, and his term of office will expire in January, 1895.

The State of Nevada made the resumption of specie payment possible. Its mines have made many millionaires, all of whom, instead of assisting in the development of the resources of the State, have invested their money elsewhere. The Palace Hotel, Bank of Nevada and other buildings and institutions of world-wide reputation, not only in San Francisco but in New York, owe their existence to Nevada. The Comstock mines alone have added at least half a billion dollars to the imperishable wealth of the country, yet the Nation, which is under great obligations to the State, discriminates against its principal product and permits European money changers to fix its price in the markets, and assists them in doing so by making it a merchantable commodity with nofixed value.

Owing principally to hostile legislation, the State, which increased in population from two thousand in 1860 to 63,000 in 1880, has to-day less than 46,000 inhabitants, including Indians off reservations and Chinese. Its mining camps, which gave profitable employment to several thousand persons, are, to a great extent, deserted, and the farmers, who found ready sale at remunerative prices for their products, are to-day compelled to ship the greater part of their products to tide water.

But the dawn of a brighter era for Nevada is observable. The richness of its mines is known throughout the world, and the fertility of its soil and salubrity of its climate are becoming known. With the remonetization of silver, of which there is a probability in the near future, there will be a large increase in population, mining camps now deserted will be reinhabited, and products which now have to be exported, will find a home market. Lands for cultivation will be sought by settlers and Nevada will become in fact as in name, a sovereign State, not a dependency of San Francisco.

BY TELEGRAPH!

News of Importance From Home and Abroad.

The Chilian Trouble.

Special to the Journal.

WASHINGTON, October 30.—During the afternoon all kinds of sensational, and in many cases manifestly absurd stories were telegraphed to Washington from other cities in this country and Europe for confirmation or contradiction. In the latter category was a startling announcement cabled to Europe by a sensation mongering news agency that the President's Cabinet had decided to declare war on Chili. This with the story that Egan had been recalled, was promptly declared inventions at the State Department. The Navy Department officials evidently have no expectation of an immediate outbreak of war. Altogether there was an air of serenety and every day "hum drum" about the State and Navy Department which no less than the denials afforded an emphatic contradiction of all sensational reports of warlike disturbance. The evening star has this: "'It would be a wholesome thing for the political health of the entire South American Continent,' said a prominent naval officer, 'if this country should turn in and give Chili a good, sound thrashing. They have the most insane notion down there, and really think they could defeat the United States without any trouble. There are about 3,000,000 of them in the whole country and they have not the slightest conception of the magnitude of this nation and its tremendous resources. They are fighters from the word go, they have just been through a severe civil war and their blood is up. The masses are probably eager for a brush with the United States, and I should not be surprised to see belligerent demonstrations before long, and I should welcome such a thing, not for the sake of activity in the navy, but for the good and wholesome effect it would have on the world at large, then, too, it would firmly establish, once for all, our supremacy on this hemisphere. The Chilians, in my opinion, are the finest lot of people in South America.'"

Another officer said: "The Chilian hates an American worse than poison. He distrusts him and takes every opportunity to get a whack at him. I should like to see an affair with Chili. Not only for professional reasons but also because I think the time has come for this country to administer a lesson to some one. The cry goes up in England that the United States is very brave in bulleyragging small countries. There never has been such a blackguard bully among little powers as England herself, and the whole world knows it." Still another officer says: "The Navy Department has been trying to impress upon Congress the importance of providing coaling stations in both the Atlantic and Pacific but nothing has been done and we are now without means of coaling our vessels in those waters, the only thing to do would be to capture a port and establish a coaling station."

"Should there be hostilities;" said a member of the Diplomatic Corps, "you need not look for any great naval engagement in Chilian waters. Your enemy seems a loud sounding glory, and he would send one or two of his best ships to the Pacific Coast, no one would know whither they had gone until they appeared in San Diego or San Francisco harbors and then there would be trouble. You do not think men who are not ignorant could be so foolish, but you do not know these Chilians. Such a conflict could have but one result, Chilian arrogance would be laid in the dust, but these hot heads would have caused infinite damage to some of your coast cities for you have no fortifications worthy of the name. You have many fine war ships though, and to us who know those who desire to be your antagonists it would not be surprising if a naval engagement in one of your California harbors were to take place within 60 days."

A reporter saw Senator Cullom after he had an interview with Secretary Tracy. Speaking of the Chilian affair, the Senator said: "The situation looks very ugly, those little chaps down there are very 'sassy,' and I think we shall be obliged to give them a lesson. If they do not change their tactics at once, the only thing for us is to send a ship down there and give them the mischief."

LONDON, October 30. — Although no credit was given to the sensational cables from New York, alleging that the United States had declared war against Chili, the present situation has led to a discussion in naval circles. An English naval officer having special knowledge of the Chilian forces, states that a war might be decidedly unpleasant for the United States at the outset and that the task of a conquest would not be an easy one, although the United States would eventually be certain of victory.

SANTIAGO DE CHILE, October 30.—It is generally admitted here that the situation of affairs in regard to the dispute between the United States and Chili have not improved. In fact the anti-American feeling is growing in bitterness, and all the American officials in Chili are apprehensive that further trouble is brewing. The exact nature of this they are unable to define, but they see little prospect that an amicable settlement of the Varparaiso incident will soon be reached, and the signs are increasing of a popular animosity toward the
